

MDRC Panel of Arbitrators

Empanelment Criteria and Eligibility Framework

MediateGuru Dispute Resolution Centre (MDRC)

Purpose. This Schedule sets out the criteria, levels of empanelment, assessment factors and continuing expectations for arbitrators appointed or considered for appointment by MDRC. It is designed to support a merit-based and transparent panel structure while preserving full institutional discretion in appointments.

Interpretive note. Empanelment is a quality filter, not a promise of case allocation. Inclusion in any panel does not create a right to appointment, a right to a minimum number of references, or any entitlement to a particular dispute type.

1. General principles

1.1 MDRC shall maintain a panel of arbitrators that reflects legal skill, subject-matter depth, neutrality, technological readiness and procedural discipline.

1.2 Appointments may be made from any suitable panel or, where appropriate, from outside the panel, depending on the nature of the dispute and the needs of the case.

1.3 MDRC may create reserved, regular, accredited and senior tiers, together with specialist sub-panels for particular sectors or dispute categories.

1.4 The institution may assess an applicant on the basis of papers alone, by interview, by practical exercise, or by any combination of these methods.

2. Panel architecture

2.1 Reserved Panel (Tier 0)

2.1.1 Early-career professionals being developed for future panel progression.

2.1.2 Ordinarily up to five years of post-qualification experience, basic arbitration familiarity and sufficient drafting ability to handle structured case materials.

2.1.3 Used for controlled exposure in low-value, document-only, MSME or ODR matters.

2.2 Panel Arbitrator

2.2.1 Regular panel member with broader professional experience and sound arbitration exposure.

2.2.2 Able to manage routine domestic commercial disputes with procedural discipline and dependable disclosure practice.

2.3 Accredited Arbitrator

2.3.1 Experienced appointment candidate with substantial arbitration exposure and demonstrated reasoned decision-making.

2.3.2 Suitable for medium to high-value disputes, larger evidentiary records and more demanding case management.

2.4 Senior Arbitrator

2.4.1 Lead or presiding candidate with deep professional standing or equivalent recognised distinction.

2.4.2 Suitable for complex, multi-party, cross-border or high-value matters requiring robust tribunal leadership.

2.5 Specialist Panel

2.5.1 Sector-specific appointment pool for technical or heavily regulated disputes.

2.5.2 Membership depends on demonstrable knowledge in the named sector and the ability to translate that knowledge into efficient arbitral management.

3. Reserved Panel (Tier 0)

3.1 Composition. The Reserved Panel shall consist of early-career professionals who have shown genuine aptitude for arbitration and who are being developed for future panel progression.

3.2 Eligibility. An applicant should ordinarily have up to five years of post-qualification experience, basic familiarity with arbitral procedure, and sufficient drafting ability to handle structured case materials. MDRC may relax the experience threshold in exceptional cases where the candidate demonstrates unusual merit, academic distinction, or relevant specialist exposure.

3.3 Developmental use. Reserved Panel members are intended to receive controlled exposure in appropriate matters. MDRC shall endeavour to provide meaningful case exposure to the Reserved Panel of Arbitrators in suitable low-value or document-only matters.

3.4 Safeguards. Appointments from the Reserved Panel shall be made only where the dispute type, value, complexity and party profile justify such allocation. MDRC may prefer document-only, MSME, fast-track or ODR matters for this purpose, and may avoid appointing Reserved Panel members in disputes requiring extensive evidentiary hearings, urgent interim relief, or highly complex multi-party management.

7.3 The institution may ask the candidate to comment on a procedural scenario, draft a short order, identify conflicts, or explain case-management choices.

7.4 Final empanelment shall depend on overall suitability, not on any single factor alone.

8.2 A panel member shall maintain reasonable availability and respond to appointment enquiries without undue delay.

9.2 MDRC shall continue to retain full discretion to appoint any neutral it considers suitable, including a person outside the panel where circumstances justify it.

9.3 The purpose of this Schedule is to raise quality, build a pipeline of neutrals, and keep the panel credible, not to substitute a quota for merit.
